1. This application contains claims directed to the following patentably distinct species of the claimed invention:

1) The embodiment as shown in figures 1A and 1B and called for in claim 1 with the slip mechanism between the handle and the stem and external threads on the stem for mating with internal threads on the stem housing.

2) The embodiment as shown in figure 2 and called for in claim 2 with the slip mechanism between the handle and a freely pivoting handle portion attached to the top of the stem and internal threads on the pivoting handle portion for mating with external threads on the stem housing.

3) The embodiment as shown in figure 3 and called for in claim 3 with the slip mechanism between the handle and the stem housing and external threads on the stem middle and top for mating with internal threads on the stem housing.

4) The embodiment called for in claim 4 and disclosed on page 10, lines 7-15, but not shown in figures with the slip mechanism between the handle and the stem, external threads on the stem for mating with internal threads on the stem housing with the second opening of the stem housing being threaded to allow vertical motion of the second opening within the stem housing.

5) The embodiment called for in claim 5 and disclosed on page 10, line 16 to page 11, line 4, but not shown in figures with the slip mechanism between the handle and a freely pivoting handle portion attached to the top of the stem, external threads on the stem for mating with internal threads on the stem housing with the second opening of the stem housing being threaded to allow vertical motion of the second opening within the stem housing.

6) The embodiment called for in claim 6 and disclosed on page 11, lines 5-15, but not shown in figures with the slip mechanism between the handle and the stem, a freely pivoting handle portion attached to the top of the stem, external threads on the stem top and middle for mating with internal threads on the handle with the handle including an attachment area allowing the handle to pivot and the stem housing including a second opening being threaded to allow vertical motion of the second opening within the stem housing.

Applicant is required under 35 U.S.C. 121 to elect a single disclosed species for prosecution on the merits to which the claims shall be restricted if no generic claim is finally held to be allowable. Currently, no claims are generic.

Applicant is advised that a reply to this requirement must include an identification of the species that is elected consonant with this requirement, and a listing of all claims readable thereon, including any claims subsequently added. An argument that a claim is allowable or that all claims are generic is considered nonresponsive unless accompanied by an election.

Upon the allowance of a generic claim, applicant will be entitled to consideration of claims to additional species which are written in dependent form or otherwise include all the limitations of an allowed generic claim as provided by 37 CFR 1.141. If claims are added after the election, applicant must indicate which are readable upon the elected species. MPEP § 809.02(a).

Should applicant traverse on the ground that the species are not patentably distinct, applicant should submit evidence or identify such evidence now of record showing the species to be obvious variants or clearly admit on the record that this is the case. In either instance, if the examiner finds one of the inventions unpatentable over the prior art, the evidence or admission may be used in a rejection under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) of the other invention.

2. A telephone call was made to Mr. Scott Meyers on 4/4/2005 to request an oral election to the above restriction requirement, but did not result in an election being made.

Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include an election of the invention to be examined even though the requirement be traversed (37 CFR 1.143).

3. An examination of this application reveals that applicant is unfamiliar with patent prosecution procedure. While an inventor may prosecute the application, lack of skill in this field usually acts as a liability in affording the maximum protection for the invention disclosed. Applicant is advised to secure the services of a registered patent attorney or agent to prosecute the application, since the value of a patent is largely dependent upon skilled preparation and prosecution. The Office cannot aid in selecting an attorney or agent.

Applicant is advised of the availability of the publication "Attorneys and Agents Registered to Practice Before the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office." This publication
